Count Me In

Thank you for taking a moment to read this—your time and consideration truly mean a lot to me.

My name is Josie Young, and I am honored to represent my city as Miss Shreveport USA 2026, competing for the title of Miss Louisiana USA this July in Starkville, Mississippi.

At 33, stepping into my very first pageant is both a bold and intentional decision. I've spent my life rooted in service, and through my work with Volunteers of America, I've had the opportunity to support some of our most vulnerable communities—individuals experiencing homelessness, mental health challenges, and those in need of stability and connection. This platform is deeply personal to me. It allows me to step out from behind the scenes and bring visibility to work that truly matters.

I created a movement called "Count Me In"—a call to action that invites individuals and businesses to be a part of something bigger. Whether it's through giving, serving, or simply showing up, this movement is about bridging the gap between people who want to help and communities that need support. It's about making sure no one feels overlooked, unheard, or without access.

As I prepare for the Miss Louisiana USA competition, I am seeking partners and sponsors who believe in this mission and want to be counted in.

This journey comes with significant preparation and expenses, and I've broken them down to allow flexibility in how you may choose to support:
